

Your Personal Reflection and Application

Is there a relationship with another believer in your life that has been broken because one or both of you have never repented? What state is that relationship in today?

Think back on a time when you or someone you know experienced reconciliation. What part did forgiveness and repentance play in bringing trust back into the relationship?

Will forgiveness always precede relational reconciliation?

Is there someone in your life that you'd love to reconcile with? Is there anything more you can do to heighten the possibility of relational reconciliation?
